1. Getting started

1.8 Model Constitution for setting up a small charity

Model constitution for setting up a small charity - income under £5,000

Who is it for?

This constitution is specifically designed for charities which expect to stay small, and have an annual income under £5,000. It is not meant for charities that own a building, employ people or intend to register with the Charity Commission. Small groups which are not charities are also welcome to use this model constitution, though they would not be covered by charity law.

Many national charities produce their own model constitutions, including Parent Teacher Associations, the Pre-School Learning Alliance, Women's Institutes, Scouts and Guides, a list of these organisations is available here. If you are setting up one of these charities, please contact them for advice and use their model rather than this one.

Setting up a charity – the constitution

If you want to start up a small charity, you will need a set of rules which explain what the charity does and how it is to be run. To help you, the Charity Commission has worked with nine umbrella organisations listed at the end of the introduction, to jointly write and promote a constitution for a small charity. This is of course not the only constitution that would be appropriate, and there are other model constitutions that both the Commission and other organisations produce.

We have pooled our experience to ensure that it's easy to understand, is short (it's only 700 words long) and meets the needs of small charities. The aim is to encourage people to get involved in running the charity and give them confidence by knowing exactly what their constitution says should be done to run it properly.

The people on the committee will be the trustees of the charity. They will be responsible for the money that other people have given and must ensure it is properly spent and correctly accounted for. Click here for The Essential Trustee publication.

How can we get help and advice?

It is always a good idea to get advice and support – and luckily there is plenty available. Talk to the local community development organisations in your area and ask for their help. Your local authority’s website would also be a good place for information and support. Each of the organisations involved with producing this constitution have websites that contain a wealth of publications and information. All of these organisations share a commitment to help small charities run properly, ensure they comply with the law, are open to people from every walk of life and flourish in every community.

How do we complete our constitution?

You need to discuss the rules and check that everybody understands and agrees with them. You must write in the ‘Purposes’ to describe what the charity has been set up for. You might also need to say which geographical area the charity will work in.

This constitution is suitable for a small charity, but it is important to recognise that just adopting it does not necessarily make the group a charity. To be a charity, all the purposes must be charitable and the organisation must be established for the public benefit. To help you with this, model wording for charitable purposes is provided by the Charity Commission on their website.

To adopt the constitution, the people who are setting up the charity need to sign and date it. By doing this they become the trustees of the charity until the first annual general meeting.

What happens if we grow?

Charities with less than £5,000 a year do not need to register with the Charity Commission. However, if your income grows larger than this, the charity must register and you should read this guidance.

If you find your organisation is getting larger, wants to employ people or buy a building, or in the future wishes to register with the Commission, you will need to replace this constitution with a more comprehensive model governing document as this one will no longer be appropriate.

ACRE, BASSAC, Charity Commission, Community Matters, CTN, DSC, NAVCA, NCVO, Small Charities Coalition, WCVA and County Voluntary Councils
